ABSTRACT

The bibliography is divided into three sections: (1) federal publications, (2) general information sources and indexes and (3) planning libraries and classification schemes. It is intended to show new planning librarians how others have attempted to solve the problems of organizing, collecting and classifying materials of interest to agencies and consulting firms working in the field of planning. The citations listed should also be of interest to academic and public libraries in the development of their government document collections since about 85% of the material in a planning library consists of publications by, for, or about places and government programs. The intention of this bibliography is to show new planning librarians how others have attempted to solve the problems of organizing, collecting and classifying materials of interest to agencies and consulting firms working in the field of planning.

The citations in this list should also be of interest to academic and public libraries in the development of their government document collections since about eighty-five per cent of the material in a planning library consists of publications by, for, or about places and government programs.

The bibliography is divided into three sections: Federal Publications; General Information Sources and Indexes; and Planning Libraries and Classification Schemes.

Federal Publications

Most of the materials printed for U. S. Government agencies are distributed by the familiar Government Printing Office. If they are the source from which the item can be obtained, we cite it as GPO. The mailing address is Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

The easiest way to obtain their publications is to establish a Deposit Account or purchase Coupon books. With the Deposit Account a library or individual sends to GPO a check or money order against which future purchases are charged. The coupon books contain five-cent coupons which you would send to the GPO in the exact amount of your order for specific materials. In either case you must pay in advance before receipt of any documents.

Considering the volume of materials published by GPO which is of interest to planning libraries we would recommend a Deposit Account rather than coupons. The latter is better for individuals rather than for libraries.

Where the document is available for direct distribution by a federal agency, we have cited its address. There is a system of depository libraries for federal publications which may be available on interlibrary loan or for reference use on a local basis. See citation 28 for details on this system.

The GPO also maintains a bookstore in Washington, D. C. where the public may walk in and purchase items over the counter. It is located on North Capitol Street (NW) between G and H Streets. They will also accept telephone orders against your Deposit Account; call (202) 541-3311.

The emphasis on selection in this section was based on the bibliographical value of the document---indexes, publication lists, etc.

1. ACIR INFORMATION BULLETIN. (biwk) free and direct. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, Washington, D. C. 20575. Each issue contains some newsmaking report plus photocopies of reviews by the media.

For a regulation to take effect it may be necessary for it to be officially promulgated in this Code. Obvious use is to find citations of regulatory authorities, but planners can also use it for design and construction requirements of some programs. You may purchase parts of the set. Pocket supplements keep it up-to-date. The Federal Register Office also issues the manual below.

26. U. S. GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION MANUAL. (annual) $ 3 from GPO. A basic acquisition for planning libraries, this is a detailed guide to officials and functions of the federal agencies. Contains an index plus an appendix of defunct agencies. Use it to locate the public information officers and officials to identify and provide publications. 28. MONTHLY CATALOG OF US GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS. $6/yr. from GPO. The most detailed index of current federal agency publications. Has a cumulative index in December issue. The depository libraries are normally listed in the September issue. When using this Catalog it is important to remember that not all publications are printed by the Government Printing Office. Some agencies have their own printing facilities, therefore it is wise to consult the publication lists of individual agencies as well as the Monthly Catalog published by the GPO.
29. PRICE LISTS. (irregular) free and direct from GPO. Consists of 87 separate bibliographies on popular subjects. Each list records items from several agencies on the same subject. They are revised frequently and new editions are noted in the Monthly Catalog. No. 36-Government periodicals and subscription services is very useful because of the ordering information-prices, frequency, etc.
30. SELECTED US GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS. (biweekly) free and direct from GPO. A two page flyer from GPO on new documents which is issued quicker than the Catalog but is not as comprehensive.
31. HIGHWAY RESEARCH BOARD PUBLICATION INDEX. (Annual) Write the Highway Research Board, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20418. Compiled from computer tapes with some biennial cumulations, it indexes items which may not be included in their other publication lists.
